

ABOUT Jennifer

Jennifer Denise Lourie was a vivacious teenager who loved to dance, play softball and soccer, go to camp, and socialize with her friends.

She was an excellent student whose aim was to go to law school and, I think, rule the world. Jennifer was active at her synagogue and having reached her thirteenth birthday had just finished her bat mitzvah when she was struck with lymphoma. Her heroic struggle for life over the next one and a half years stands as a testimony to her will to live. In-home services such as those provided by Hospice of Washington County made her last days easier both for her and her family. Jennifer would have wanted the availability of such services for all children struck with such cataclysmic diseases and to have her name associated with a fund at Hospice of Washington County, Inc. to support them.

ABOUT THE
Jennifer
FUND

Dr. Ira Lourie, Jennifer's father, has created The Jennifer Fund at Hospice of Washington County, Inc. to insure that the necessary funds would be available to pediatric patients and their families utilizing hospice care services through Hospice of Washington County. Hospice care to pediatric patients is often three times more expensive than hospice care for adults and urgently needed services are sometimes out of reach for many families.

The Jennifer Fund is designed to help families of terminally ill children with their needs for quality hospice care, including clinical services, medication and equipment.

Every dollar contributed to The Jennifer Fund goes to help pay for comprehensive pediatric hospice care, which insurance plans do not adequately support. Contributions are used for durable medical equipment, prescription medications, creative arts therapies and the many other needs of terminally ill children. Funds will also be used for family needs such as traveling expenses, sibling support and basic daily needs.
